

TINLEY MAN KILLED BY FAST TRAIN

Aged Resident Steps Out of Path of One Train Into Another

Thos. Moran, aged 70 years a resident of Tinley Park for many years was struck and instantly killed by a fast bound Rock Island mail train, Saturday morning near the Harper crossing, east of Tinley.

From what can be learned, it appeared that the aged man was waiting for a west bound freight train to pass and failed to see the approaching mail train and stepped directly into the path of it.

He is survived by his widow and daughter. Funeral services were held Monday.

To Sponsor Citizenship Class

A very commendable and noteworthy project which the Mokena Civic association is preparing to sponsor in the very near future, is a new citizenship program, the date of which will soon be designated by Gov. Henry Horner. This movement is for young people who have reached voting age within the past 12 months or those who have become citizens by naturalization.

This movement is non-political, is national and non-sectarian. The Sons of the American Revolution are furnishing many speakers and the entire movement is something that the entire country has needed to offset other propaganda and movements which are un-American. The new program also aims to educate the new citizens to a fuller appreciation of our American privileges and responsibilities.

Wins Fridgidaire At Picnic

Mr. Sahler, Clerk of Sears and Roebuck at Joliet won the Fridgidaire Sunday, at St. John's picnic. Jake Knupp of Joliet won the 50 gallons of gas.

Attends Lake County Fair

Geo. Brandau of Frankfort representing Geo. Thomson highbred seed corn and phosphate, has been attending county fairs in Indiana. Last week he conducted a booth at the Lake County fair held in Crown Point.

Townsend Meeting At New Lenox September 7th

A Townsend Rally will be held in Emile Hall in New Lenox on Thursday evening, Sept. 7th at 8 p. m.

Walter F. Woodcock, editor and publisher of the Elgin Tribune will be the speaker of the evening. Every one cordially invited.

Organize Piano Music Class

Mrs. Esther Davies of Joliet, Ill., who has had a class of 9 pupils in Mokena for piano instruction for sometime, is a very highly talented instructor.

Mrs. Davies is the organist for the Richard Street Methodist church in Joliet which position she has held for many years. She has devoted her entire life to this art. She is a graduate from the Bush Temple of Chicago, school of organ and piano instruction, has studied piano and pipe organ with well known artists as Clarence Eddy, Edgar Nelson, Julia Rive King and Clarence Bradley of Chicago who are all distinguished composers and teachers, and Emil Liebing.

Will Serve A Chicken Dinner

The Ladies Aid of the Green Garden M. E. church will serve a chicken supper in the church Thursday, evening, September 14.

Plans $30,000 Home

A report has been in circulation the past week that a Chicago party is planning on building a home to cost between $30,000 and $40,000 on the top of the hill on the west side of Wolf road near the Hickory Creek south of Mokena. According to reports a Chicago architect is now drawing the plans.

Fails To Stop-Then Bad Crash!

Failure to observe a stop sign at the junction of 159th street and Wolf Road caused a serious accident shortly after noon on Monday.

A young man who later identified himself as the son of Geo. Kozar of Chicago was driving north on Wolf road but failed to stop at 159th street and just as his car reached the intersection another car going west and driven by LeRoy West, an official of the Metal Workers League of Hammond Ind., crashed into the side of the car and injured Jerry Pfeifer of Chicago who was riding with Kozar. The injured man was removed to the Silver Cross hospital in Joliet. Kozar was uninjured but suffered from shock. A Mr. DeYoung was riding in the Indiana car but neither he nor the driver of this car was hurt.

Tinley Bus. Men Hear Pep Talk

Members of the Tinley Park Business Men's Association enjoyed a most delightful evening of good fellowship and entertainment as well as most delicious dinner at G. Din's place in Tinley Park, Monday evening.

The fine spirit of friendship and sociability exhibited at this gathering is very outstanding. In fact, no other community in the immediate vicinity can boast of such cordial relationships among business men as exists in Tinley Park.

Following the dinner, Pres. Henry C. Vogt introduced the speakers. First Chas. Crawford of the Barrett Hdw. Co., of Joliet and Mr. Harry Yoder of Chicago. Both men enlivened the gathering with spicy words, jokes and pep talks. Mr. Crawford gave a very fine address on Sportsmanship in Business from which we take great pleasure in printing herewith:

It is a curious fact that the more civilized man has become the harder he has made it for himself to live. This has been the case wherever a civilization has emerged. Among the primitive people we find conditions of life not only fairly equal but also fairly easy. If one is prosperous, all are prosperous. If one starves, all starve. There may be exceptions to this general rule, but historians tell us this is the condition generally found in primitive people.

Only in civilizations do we observe the amazing spectacle of many going hungry while a few are living in abundance. The problem of the survival of the fittest is carried to a new high in civilized society. Here the human being must not only fight nature and other creatures but he must also pit his strength and cunning against members of his own species in this struggle for a satisfactory life.

The human being is therefore born into the world with the desire for conquest instilled within him. From the first to the last breath we draw conquest is the goal we never cease to keep before us.

No matter what man may gain in his struggle with life and his fellow creatures, there is always more that he desires, and the impulse is to keep fighting.

However, people cannot go about fighting each other or we would have the lawlessness of the jungle. While the fighting spirit may be admirable in itself, it needs to be kept under some restraint or else it gets out of hand. Therefore, a new element enters into the scene—character. It takes character to deal with this problem of relationship between men, and dealing with it develops character.

The old proverb, "all's fair in love and war" cannot apply if civilization is to endure. Many centuries ago it was recognized that something finer was needed in this struggle between man for existence. It was not called sportsmanship then. It was called honor then, and the value of honor was stressed until it became a matter of pride with a man to preserve his honor. A man of culture and breeding would not think of violating his honor to gain an advantage even in the most competitive undertakings in the world—love and war. Today sportsmanship is no longer limited to the privileged class who have had the advantages of wealth

Citywide Playoffs Start Saturday

Lockport Field is to be the scene of the start of National Tournament Aug. 26 and 27. The Lockport Texaco's, who by winning the first round of the South West Suburban League will represent this league in the Chicago Baseball Federation Citywide play-offs Saturday, Aug. 26 and 27th. Their opponents at this time are not known, but they will be a champion of some league on the south side of Chicago. On Saturday starting at 3:00 p.m. the Texacos will play a single game with one of the other Federation League Champions, and the winner will play on Sunday at 1:30 p.m. against another league champion. At 3:30 p.m. the winner of the 1:30 game will play off with another Chicago League Champion. After the series here the semi-finals and finals move to Comiskey Park in Chicago.

The games in the city wide play off which bring together the Champions of 32 leagues throughout Chicagoland and its suburbs, is to determine a city champion to meet the winner of the State title, and the winner of the City title will play for the chance to be sent to the National Tournament of the American Baseball which brings together Amateur Champions of the entire Nation to compete at Battle Creek, Mich.

One of the rules of this tournament is that each Champion is allowed 3 extra batters, because of the fact that they have to play 3 games in 2 days. After careful consideration, the Manager of the Texaco's has selected Morry Adamson of the Oaklawn A. C., Pitcher; E. Nicolai, Orland Park, Pitcher; and F. DeRudder, Catcher of Midlothian Boosters.

Don't forget, Saturday, August 26, 1 game 3:00 p.m. Sunday, August 27, 2 games, 1:30 and 3:30 p.m.

Plan Boy Scout Organization At Frankfort

Last Thursday evening a meeting was called by Mayor George C. Sangmeister of Frankfort for the purpose of organizing a local boy scout troop. A fair sized attendance was reported but considerable interest in the undertaking was manifested. True Daniels of the Tinley Park boy scouts gave a very comprehensive outline of the work of that organization as well as the benefits the boys of the community derive from being members of the group.

Another meeting was scheduled for Thursday night of this week to perfect the organization plans for the local group. Mayor Sangmeister is to be highly commended for his active part in promoting local affairs that are for the best interests of the young people as well as the older ones of his community.

and culture. Instead, sportsmanship is the privilege of all and provides the ideal by which we guide our lives in all of our relationships with fellow humans.

Sportsmanship means being honest, fair and taking no undue advantages of others. A good explanation of the purpose sought can be found in a letter which a young athlete wrote to Major Henry Lee Higginson after he had delivered an inspiring address in dedicating Soldier's Field. The young athlete wrote as follows: "It matters but little the week after, whether a boat race or football match be won or lost; but let a man or a team do but a single thing which is not entirely manly and above-board, and it sets them back in the real race perhaps for years."

Thus we see that sportsmanship seeks to discern between the value of winning and that of playing the game fairly. In other words, it is more important to be fair, honest, and above-board in your dealings with fellow men than it is to win a game or gain a profit by taking undue advantage and violating the rules of play.

It becomes necessary for individuals to become good sports in order to live in harmony with their fellow creatures. The first thing we want to know about a stranger in our midst is whether or not he is a good sport.

To determine this we find such practices as hazing at college and submitting a new employee to practical jokes. If the newcomer accepts these things with good grace, he is considered a good sport and is O. K. If he is a grouch it is known at once.

In any undertaking where men must work together to gain success a certain amount of discipline is necessary, and it is good sportsmanship to accept this discipline for the good of persons engaged in certain types of business. Discipline in business consists in a long procession of subordinates. I take orders of the man above me, just as the men below

WIFE OF FORMER TINLEY MAYOR DIES

Mrs. Emma Andres, aged 73 years, widow of the late Henry Andres former Mayor of Tinley Park, died at her home in Aurora, Friday, August 18. The deceased was the daughter of the late Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Karnopp, formerly of the Tinley Park community.

Mrs. Andres was one of the organizers of the former Union Methodist church of Tinley Park. She was a very active church worker. She leaves to mourn her departure 4 brothers, 3 sisters and a host of other relatives and friends. Her husband preceded her in death two months ago on May 11.

Funeral services were held in Aurora on August 22. Burial was made in the Lincoln Highway cemetery of that city.

Softball Game at Mokena To-Nite

Tonight Frankfort travels to Mokena to play their final game of the schedule at Hayden's Field. Up to date Mokena has taken two games from the Frankfort lads, the last being a no hit, no run game, so they are really out for revenge. If its excitement you are after, come out to the game tonight. The game starts promptly at 6:45.

Girl Editor Makes Headlines In War On Gambling

Miss June Geserick, 20 year old editor of the Homewood Herald made the headlines in last Sunday's Chicago Tribune when she scored a scoop in her paper on the fight between the Homewood village board and the Homewood tavern owners on the slot machine and gambling question in that town. The village board voted 5 to 1 to oust all gambling from Homewood and the tavern owners were reported to have retaliated with a threatened boycott of the town if the slot machines were not restored. Miss Geserick came out with a defiant editorial on the matter: The editorial was as follows:

If the reason advanced for refusal of Homewood Taverns to advertise in this issue of the Herald was correct, and taverns are going to boycott merchants and civic enterprises because of the ban on slot machines, the Herald and all Homewood must inform themselves of every detail involved.

The action would actually mean that tavern owners would be attempting to force merchants to fight for the re-instatement of slot machines.

Disregarding the fact as to whether such machines should be banned because of their moral effect, the fact remains that not only a village ordinance is involved. Slot machines are operated in violation of the State Law as well as a village ordinance and it is the duty of Village officials to enforce that State Law in the same manner it must enforce Statutes prohibiting larceny or murder.

As long as slot machines are in violation of the law, this newspaper will not urge the village board to re-instate the gambling devices in Homewood. This decision of the Herald will continue, regardless of the refusal of taverns to advertise in this issue or any future issue. The Herald will not campaign for an illegal device.

The Herald has no quarrel with slot machines. It has no quarrel with tavern owners. But above either of these facts, it certainly has no quarrel with a village board for ordering enforcement of existing State laws. Until such time as the State law is altered, this is the only attitude open to the Herald.

Milk Local Will Hold Picnic

The Mokena-Frankfort local of the Pure Milk Association will hold a picnic at the Frankfort Grove the afternoon and evening of Sept. 9th.

There will be plenty of amusements and games with plenty of eats and drinks.

The Mokena band will appear in a band concert between 8:30 and 10:30 p.m.

Dancing with music by Lea's Melody boys. Prize waltz at 10:30 p.m.

Everyone invited to attend.

RETURN FROM OZARK TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Marti and family have returned from a trip thru the Ozarks. They saw many points of interest traveling thru Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Kentucky.

Mokena Civic Group Plans For Many Outstanding Displays

The big fall festival of the Mokena Civic association will have a large number of very interesting and varied exhibits on display. These will be grouped in the following classes: Business Men's, sponsored by the local business men, historical exhibits of local and general interest, exhibits of work done in school, exhibits of boy and girl scouts, art and photography. Flower exhibit will be one of the most attractive features of the festival. Further detailed description of the articles desired will be supplied in the next 2 issues succeeding this one. Anyone desiring further information can obtain it by calling Adolph Steen, Mokena 63M.

Mokena Civic Asso. Opens War On Speeding

The Mokena Civic Association has taken up a matter of attempting to curb insane automobile driving speed throughout the streets of Mokena. At the meeting of the Association held Monday evening, this matter was fully discussed and it was found that on account of lack of funds the village board is not in a position to engage a permanent officer. It however, was brought to the attention of the members of the association that any citizen can file a complaint and have the offenders prosecuted.

It was the unanimous opinion that the obnoxious practice must be stopped before someone is seriously injured.

Among the worst offenders are young boys and girls not from the farms alone but right in the village. The Association has learned that the sheriff of Will County will not take any part in the matter, neither will the Illinois State highway police unless compensated for their services.

The Secretary of the association was instructed to write to the Attorney General at Springfield for an opinion and the association feels that some action must be taken and will carry it to some conclusion.

Orland Dealer To Have Exhibit At Peotone Fair

With the assistance of the Bendix Co., and the Crane Co., Clarence Beagley of Orland Park is putting on a demonstration at the Will County Fair which is being held next week at Peotone.

We are promised an exceptional display that will be very interesting. Prizes are to be given away for attendance.

Attends Funeral Of Author

Mrs. Florence Demkov of Mokena returned Wednesday evening from Beverly Hills, Chicago where she was called Sunday by the death of an old and close friend, Mr. Waldo Warren who was well known as an author and writer. Mr. Warren was best known for his work with Marshall Field and the State Street Council in Chicago. He has visited in Mokena and was admired and loved by those who knew him.

Modern Pioneers Head for Antarctic, Hoping to Start New American Colony

Byrd Expedition Leaves In Mid-October for Two-Year Stay.

By CLYDE PEARSON
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

ON SOME future day the air voyager bound from New York to Australia may spend the night at America's settlement in the antarctic, proceeding across the South pole next day to complete his trip. During his overnight visit he will chat with American colonists who spend six to seven months a year at the southern tip of the world, bringing precious ores out of the snow-covered mountains and shipping them back home by plane and boat.

If this idea seems far-fetched to 129,999,999 Americans, it doesn't to the other one—Rear Admiral Richard Evelyn Byrd. Come October and he'll head out of Boston on his third trip to the South pole, the first such expedition to be financed by the government since the intrepid Captain Wilkes was given a vague commission by congress in 1838 to "explore new lands."

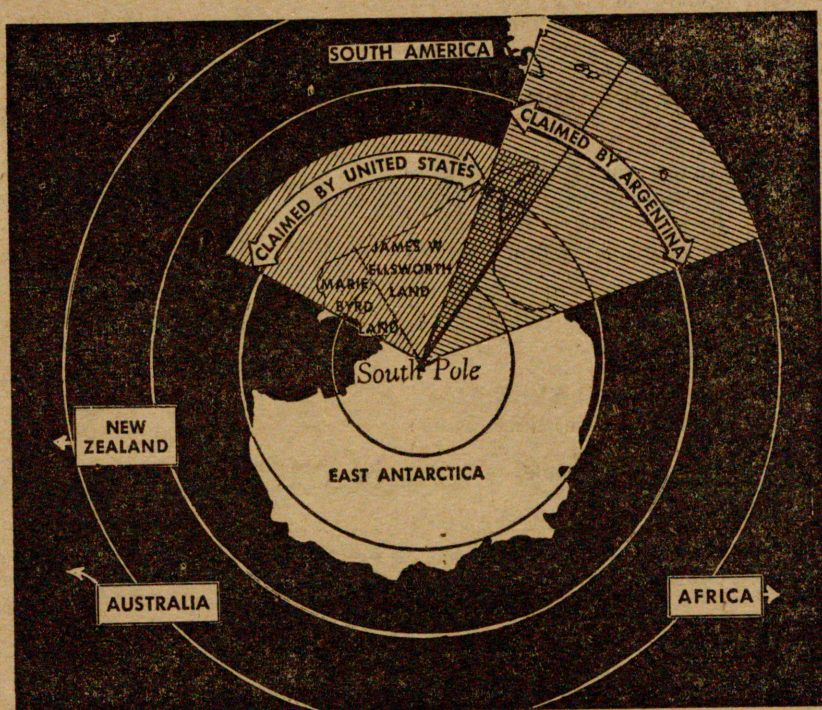

It will be the first attempt by any nation to establish a polar land claim on the basis of permanent settlement. And it may run into a pack of trouble.

Conflict With Argentina.

Commander Byrd hopes to claim for the United States all of Marie Byrd Land and the adjoining James Ellsworth Land, which together include some 500,000 miles. He also hopes to explore (and possibly claim) part of the Weddell sea quadrant, and it is here that he will run against Argentina's claims. As shown on the map, that nation maintains her right to a sector extending toward the pole from the Falkland islands. The territory is also claimed by Great Britain.

Inasmuch as Argentina's friendship is highly valued, the state department will make every effort to respect her wishes, at the same time maintaining her new policy of refusing to recognize any polar claim that has not been permanently settled.

Briefly, the new Byrd expedition has a two-year job. Leaving in three ships, two of them owned by the government and the third—the veteran "Bear of Oakland"—leased on a "dollar a year" basis, the party will establish three bases. One will be at Little America, Byrd's old camp in Marie Byrd Land. Another will be at Palmer Land, which is the hook extending out of Antarctica toward South America, just west of the Weddell sea. The third will be midway between the two in what is unexplored territory.

ANTARCTICA—Shaded areas show the section claimed by Argentina and that which Admiral Byrd's party will explore during the next two years, possibly staking out land claims for the United States. As shown on the map, U. S. and Argentine interests clash in part of this section. Right: Admiral Byrd.

Can Stay Two Years.

In early spring, when the long antarctic night has passed, the three parties will set out in sleds and dog-teams to explore the frozen lands of the interior. Unknown territory will be mapped and data will be sought concerning important mineral resources. It has been established definitely that these wastelands contain coal, and probably other minerals of more immediate value to the United States.

About 180 men will make the trip, 60 of them remaining at the three camps for at least a year. They will maintain sufficient food supplies for two years, however, because the shifting ice packs may delay the returning expedition.

Every modern scientific weapon will be at the party's disposal, thanks to a $340,000 appropriation by congress and assistance of the new United States antarctic service. Contributing to its personnel are the interior, state, war and navy departments, the coast guard and several private scientific organizations.

Build Snow Cruiser.

The most novel instrument will be a 45,000-pound snow cruiser being developed by Dr. Thomas C. Poulter, second in command of Admiral Byrd's last antarctic expedition and a member of the new party. This giant craft, which will travel atop the ice, is 55 feet long. It is designed to cross snow-covered crevasses, the greatest peril of antarctic land travel. It has 10-foot wheels equipped with treads on the caterpillar tractor principle and is driven by a brace of diesel engines.

The boat carries three or four men with ample supplies for several months. On its roof will be strapped a small airplane.

Many scientists are now considering the possibility of a permanent settlement. Whether or not such colonization is made depends upon the expedition's findings regarding the antarctic's value as a future source of minerals, as a fishery source and as an observation post for meteorological predictions. Congress will then decide from year to year whether the colony should be maintained.

Proposes Observatory.

Admiral Byrd is convinced the settlement would be practical. Early in June he pointed out that antarctic weather stations should be constantly occupied with staffs, changed from season to season.

"The south polar region is a weather breeder for the whole world south of the equator and indirectly affects us in the north," he said. "Data collected there, studied together with that from other parts of the world, will be of much practical importance. It should enable our scientists to make long-range weather forecasts with an accuracy greater than anything we know now."

At antarctic coal mines, and in the vicinity of gold, silver and other deposits expected to be found there, he expects permanent settlements will spring up within the next 50 years.

Predicts Aviation Bases.

Admiral Byrd thinks antarctic aviation possibilities are enormous. Just as Russia and several other nations have considered a Europe-North America airline via the North pole, Mr. Byrd thinks the time is not far distant when planes will cross the South pole regularly flying between South or even North America and Australia.

And so for the next two years we'll hear lots about the antarctic as the expedition's ships come and go, and as the magic of wireless brings your newspapers constant reports of this unique land-staking junket into the ice-crusted wilderness.

There's only one catch to it. An eagle-eyed reporter recently discovered that congress appropriated funds to send an expedition to the antarctic, without saying anything specifically about getting it back. Speaking privately, several members of the party thought this would be a good idea in case war envelops the civilized world during the next two years.

But Admiral Byrd says no one need worry—the expedition is coming back if it has to walk over the ice like Eliza.

CARTER FIELD

Farm situation not measurably improved and little hope on the horizon before another year . . . Conditions might arise to make Wallace President . . . Appropriations exceed those of last year by more than a billion . . . Even Farley cannot find out if the President wants a third term.

WASHINGTON.—It was the farm revolt against the New Deal that was responsible for a good many of the Republican victories in the 1933 election, and, to a lesser extent, for the failure of the New Deal purges against recalcitrant Democratic senators.

This was notably true in Ohio, where perhaps the turnover as between the 1936 and the 1938 votes was the most spectacular in the country. But there was scarcely a state in which this dissatisfaction of the farmers with the way things were going did not play a part in the reaction.

What makes this so important right now is that the farm situation has not measurably improved, and that there is nothing of importance on the horizon which indicates that it may be substantially improved before next year. The food and clothing stamps for surplus commodities will help a little bit. The idea seems to be good, and it is working fairly well in experimental areas. This means that it will be liberally extended, and may prove very important. But few keen students of the farm problem in Washington think that it is going to be enough to change the tide.

What can change the tide, of course, is a very different farm picture next year. Nobody can tell about that now, but nature may take a hand, either in restricting crops here, or, even better from the standpoint of farm incomes, by restricting them abroad.

Conditions Might Arise to Make Wallace President

If the farmers of this country next season should have bumper crops, while the farmers of the Argentine and other competing areas suffer drought and pestilence, so that the farmers of the United States not only have a lot to sell, but are able to get good prices for their crops, the Republican candidates can scream their heads off without getting anywhere. The farm revolt will simply disappear.

It might even make Henry A. Wallace President!

But the present situation is desperate, from the Wallace standpoint. The estimated corn crop is 2,500,000,000 bushels, which is not only bad because it is enormous, but because this is the third year in succession that the corn growers of this country have produced more than they can sell, or at least, as B. M. Baruch likes to state the same problem, "more than they can sell at a profit."

Wallace's ever-normal granary is taxed to the roof with a 400,000,000-bushel carry-over. In fact no one knows what to do with the corn. Wallace has sent out a call for $5,500,000 worth of steel corn bins in which the commodity credit corporation can store 50,000,000 bushels along railroads and near elevators.

So it is small wonder that the food and drug administration was kicked around when it tried to prevent, by law, continued use of dextros without stating on the label that it was contained in processed foods. The beet and cane sugar group in this country is pretty strong, politically, but not strong enough to battle the problem in that mammoth corn crop. If anybody wants to use corn sugar in food why that is fine—it will use up a little corn.

Legislators Love Pork but Want to Do Own Carving

"Spend and spend, tax and tax" is out the window unless Franklin D. Roosevelt can get another mandate next year, thus proving the "elect and elect" part of the trilogy attributed to but denied by Harry L. Hopkins. This does not mean that congress has turned parsimonious, despite the spectacular rejection of the rule to take up the spend-lend bill, and the shelving of the housing measure. The legislators still love their pork, but they want to do the carving themselves, and they want to select the favored plates to receive the best slices.

Actually this congress was pretty liberal with the people's money. It appropriated about $12,500,000,000 this year, which is hardly cheese-paring or a step toward balancing the budget. But it refused to increase the present $45,000,000,000 debt limit, and then refused to get around it by the spend-lend device.

The two things took different sorts of courage, one easy, politically, if one leaves out the angle of defying the White House, and the other much more difficult. Refusal to increase the debt limit did not make any group of voters mad. It did not deprive any group who wanted a piece of federal pork or even the gravy to go with it. It was just a gesture. Voting to adopt it did not stop a single appropriation. It simply served notice that, after the federal debt has been increased about four more billions, we are going to stop increasing it.

Appropriations Exceed

Last Year's by Over Billion

This year's appropriations, however, were roughly $1,100,000,000 more than last year's, which were 11 billion 400 millions. But the important thing now is to note the trend. The economy revolt, if it can be called that from such an extravagant congress, came right at the end of the session. Just after the house refused even to take up the spend-lend bill—by voting down the rule under which it was to have been considered—the house appropriations committee waded into the final deficiency appropriation bill, cutting the amounts authorized more savagely than any appropriation bill has been cut by this body since 1933.

This would seem to spell plenty of economy next year.

If business gets better—as the stock market seemed to predict the day after the house killed the spend-lend bill—it would seem unlikely that the President can work the country up against the men who voted to kill the bill.

Which would mean economy, plentifully sprinkled with pork.

Not Even Jim Farley Could Find Out President's Plans

Shortly after the Hatch bill became law, enthusiastic Garner boosters actually made bets, giving three to one, that Roosevelt would not be renominated. Pressed as to the explanation of their confidence, they insisted that they were not sure the President had decided not to seek a third term or he would not have signed the bill.

This is far from conclusive logic, as there is strong opinion that for the President to have vetoed the Hatch bill, and then run, would have given the Republicans a very useful club with which to belabor him during the campaign.

Not even Jim Farley was able to find out whether the President will make the race or not, so everything is speculative, but there is one very curious element in the situation, resembling slightly the political effect of the President's defeat last year in the "purge" primaries.

It was contended then by some very astute politicians that every time the President lost a purge fight he thereby made his own renomination more likely. The theory at that time was that each defeat made it less likely that the President would be able to force the delegation from that state to the next Democratic convention to vote for some other New Dealer. Hence it made it less likely that any New Dealer except the President could be nominated. And finally, that this situation would force the President to run again in order to ensure that the New Deal policies would be carried on. The theory included, of course, the conviction held at that time that a Democratic convention would not dare refuse renomination if the President's friends were fighting for it.

By the same token, the Hatch bill has undoubtedly curtailed the power the President will be able to exercise over the national convention. It will be possible to beat the devil round the stump, in many instances, but every time this is done a weak link is inserted in the chain.

Might Work Out This Way in The National Convention

Imagine, for example, Postmaster A, who normally, being a political power in his community, would be a delegate to the national convention. The Hatch law prevents this, so A has his political man Friday selected as delegate instead. Immediately two possible weaknesses occur to the line of federal control which would not exist if A himself were a delegate. First, of course, Friday may intend to do what A orders when he goes to the convention. But when he gets in a delegation caucus—say, for instance, on the question of whether that state delegation will stick by Roosevelt for another ballot—Friday may decide to run on A, and on Roosevelt. Of course there is nothing A can do about it in time to change the convention results.

Or it may be that A wants to retain the appearance of loyalty to Roosevelt, but privately thinks the party's chances in his state would be better with some other nominee. Then he may tell Friday, very confidentially, that he wants the delegation to leave Roosevelt at the first opportunity, and Friday may obey him. Then A can protest to the White House that he was betrayed by that "ingrate" Friday.

But while Roosevelt's chances of controlling the convention are thus weakened, this is no guarantee that he will not be renominated. If there is a surge of sentiment for him, just before the convention, which might be manifested in preferential presidential primaries, it is entirely conceivable that the convention would name him.

Beautiful Crocheted Doilies for the Table

Pattern 1935

Add that touch of luxury that marks a well-kept home. Crochet a large lace doily for a centerpiece—a large and two medium-sized ones for buffet set—three sizes repeated for a luncheon set! The large doily measures 18 inches, the medium one 12 inches and the small 6 inches. Pattern 1935 contains directions for making doilies; illustrations of them and of stitches; materials required; photograph of doily.

Send 15 cents in coins for this pattern to The Sewing Circle Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Ave., New York.

Windsor Castle

Windsor Castle, one of the several royal palaces of Great Britain, together with its many buildings, parks and forests, occupies an area of 13,000 acres and is 56 miles in circumference. Its maintenance and ceremonies, even when the king and his family are not in residence, require a staff of more than 4,000 servants.—Collier's.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging headache, persistent dizziness, attacks of drowsiness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Summer Reaches Washington When Congress Leaves Town

WASHINGTON.—Summer's almost over for most of America, but for Washington it's just started. Moon, sun and climate to the contrary, the nation's capital knows only one unfixed period of summertime each year.

It starts the instant speakers of both houses of congress bang their adjournment gavels and send the thundering herd of legislators back to their home stamping grounds.

But by the same token summer—come when it may—brings a new influx to Washington. It is then that tourist business reaches its peak, drawing thousands of summer-vacation, Christmas-bills-finally-paid-off visitors.

But modern Washington summers have lost the out-to-lunch touch that once made the city a haven for those who sought escape from the madding crowd. Since 1932 a huge crop of new administrative offices has grown up, keeping much of the city's population busy without letup. Once, in the dear dead days, all governmental offices automatically adopted a shorter work day immediately after congress adjourned. Even today, despite the growth of new bureaus, longer lunch hours and brief days are the rule.

Investigators Stay On.

Still another harsh note breaks the Potomac's stillness this summer. As in all summers preceding election years, the current between-session spell finds investigating committees hard at work. One reason is that their members can draw big headlines without competition during the news-less dog days of late summer.

This summer's committees will be headed by Texas' Rep. Martin Dies, who reopens his investigation of subversive activities. The new house committee to investigate the national labor relations board will provide a bit more entertainment.

Such affairs will not interest the tourists, however. Preparing for a boom season, the board of trade has made plans once more to cash in on a $60,000,000 annual business.

Washington tourist business comes from all over the world. It is estimated that only 5 per cent of foreign visitors to the United States fail to see the city. Hence the professional guides who speak French, German, Italian and Spanish. The tourists' favorite meccas are the Smithsonian institution and National museum, the capitol building (whose chambers still echo the past winter's angry debates) and the White House.

These Draw 'Em, Too!

Following close in popularity come Mount Vernon, the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the bureau of printing and engraving, the Washington cathedral, Supreme court, library of congress, federal bureau of investigation, Pan-American union and the Lincoln memorial.

Most popular method of inspecting the city is via the sightseeing bus. Thus tourists visit the White House and other historical spots at the rate of 6,000 a day, listening to guides reel off an unintelligible spiel and crack stock jokes, many of which deservedly draw no laughs.

Though August is the peak month, tourists will continue to pour in through September and October. By November 1 the species becomes almost extinct, remaining thus for the next six months until May again beckons the patriotic American to hallowed ground.

CHILD OF EVIL

By OCTAVUS ROY COHEN

CHAPTER X—Continued

Kay bit her lip. There was something in her father's manner which she could not grasp . . . a subtle reticence which eluded her. She asked, "You know all about it?"

"Everybody in Beverly knows by now," said Andy.

"What do they know?"

"Nothing, except that Kirk Reynolds has been killed."

Andrew Forrest dropped his hand on his daughter's shoulder. "Don't you reckon you'd better come home, Kay?"

She nodded. "I suppose so . . ."

"I think it'd be wise. I'll talk to Floyd while you pack up."

Kay looked startled. The words were out before she thought. She said, "I'm all packed."

For just an instant, Andrew Forrest looked startled. Then he said, "I'll see Floyd right now," and went out of the front door. Andy sat down near his sister.

"Kind of tough luck, Sis."

He was kindly . . . which was unlike Andy.

There were good-bys, and Mrs. Hamilton begged Kay to come back soon. Briefly, Barney backed her into a corner and took her hands. His palms were cold.

"You're quite all right, honey?"

"Yes . . . Oh! Barney, you're sure . . ."

"I told you the truth." His fingers were tight on hers. "I'll be driving into town—often."

"Please. I need you so much."

They put Kay's suitcase in the tonneau of the little car and all three of them sat in the front seat, with Andy at the wheel and Kay in the middle. They moved through lanes of tourist cars and swung right on the dirt highway. Not until then did Mr. Forrest speak.

"You're sure you're all right, Kay?"

"I suppose so." She closed her eyes.

The fresh, clean odor of pine helped clear her brain. She stole a glance at her brother's face, strong and determined without being sharp . . . the face of an average, good young man. A dependable face. She spoke to both . . . without looking at either.

"What happened after you left me last night?"

Mr. Forrest answered. "We drove right home."

"Did you meet anybody?"

"Where?"

"In the Gardens?"

Mr. Forrest put his hand over hers. "We didn't meet Kirk Reynolds—if that's what you mean."

Andy said, "We didn't meet a soul—except cars we passed on the way home."

Kay said, "Somebody killed Kirk . . . and I was afraid that . . ."

"I understand."

"But you don't understand—not really. Kirk came last night to take me back to Beverly with him . . . to make me live with him as his wife. That's why I was so nervous when you and Andy showed up. I was afraid you'd meet him. And when I heard—this morning—what had happened, I thought . . . well, I thought maybe you had met him."

Mr. Forrest shook his head. "No, we didn't meet him."

"But you could have. He was due there about that time."

"We didn't meet him!" Andy's voice was metallic. "We've told you that a dozen times."

Kay subsided. Her father said, "I'm mighty sorry, Kay . . ."

"I don't know what to do. Don't you see, Dad, somebody did kill Kirk. You say it wasn't you or Andy. I don't believe Jim Owenby did it—although he was out there alone for a long time. And . . ."

"Where was Barney?"

"He was outside, too. That's what scares me."

"What does he say?"

"He says he didn't do it. Everybody says that."

"Let's not talk about it now, dear." Andrew Forrest's voice was calm, reassuring. "After we get home—after you've begun to feel better—there are heaps of things we can talk about. You can tell me the truth about this marriage business now, can't you?"

She nodded. "Yes, of course. Now."

Kay and Mrs. Forrest had never been too close to one another. Kay was too much like her father, too little tolerant of her mother's granite virtues. She anticipated with dread the tears and condemnation, the inescapable "You see what you've done" . . . "If you'd only kept away from that man . . ."

Andy parked at the curb and Kay and her father walked up to the house together. They opened the front door and Kay stepped inside.

Mrs. Forrest came to meet her: short and sturdy and firm. And then a queer thing happened. Mrs. Forrest did not scold, she did not condemn, she did not say, "I told you so."

She opened her arms and Kay slid into their haven. She heard a note in her mother's voice that she had not heard since earliest girlhood. Sympathy and kindness. She heard her mother saying, "My poor baby . . ."

Kay broke down. The sobs which had tortured her by their very repression broke forth. She clung tight . . . her defenses destroyed by this unexpected gentleness.

"Oh! Mother . . ." she sobbed, like a little girl. "Oh, Mother . . . I'm so glad to be home . . ."

Doc Morrison said, "I'm getting damned sick and tired of it," and Mrs. Tandy answered, "Why Doctor, I don't know what you mean."

Doc elevated his lanky frame from the ancient, creaky swivel chair and paced his musty office.

"You know dog-gone good and well what I mean, Martha Tandy. I mean this everlasting gossip about Kay Forrest."

"Kay Reynolds," sniffed the dumpy little lady virtuously. "She is his widow, you know. And she didn't even go to the funeral."

"Why should she? And why can't Beverly leave her alone? She's a nice kid."

"Hmph! Brought it on herself—that's what I say."

"You and a thousand others. Well, you listen to me, I'm not hearing any more of it. I'm a medical man, not a gossip hound."

"But Doctor—"

"Don't but me, Woman. And you can tell all your friends to keep it. Not that anyone cared particularly about Kirk . . . not that kind words were said about him, even now. But there was curiosity to be satisfied, and for several days the life of Gabe Dixon, Solicitor of the Seventh Judicial Circuit, had been anything but pleasant.

He sat now in his office, coat off, sleeves rolled above the elbow, cheek in mouth, feet cocked on the paper-strewn desk. His stenographer came through the door and closed it carefully behind her.

She said, "Somebody to see you, Mr. Dixon."

"Who?"

The young lady came closer. "It's that woman," she whispered. "What woman?"

"That woman from the hotel. Sonia Henkel."

CHAPTER XI

Gabe Dixon, Solicitor of the Seventh Judicial Circuit, prided himself upon being, at all times and under all circumstances, a gent. He gave proof of this now by removing his feet from the desk-top as Sonia Henkel entered the room. His shifty, watery eyes blinked and his prominent Adam's apple bobbed excitedly as he murmured, "Siddown, Miss Henkel," and jerked his head in the direction of a cane-bottom chair near the desk.

Mr. Dixon scrutinized his visitor keenly. He had heard all about Sonia (not without personal interest) and had seen her occasionally on the street . . . but this intimate view was more than a trifle intriguing.

The silence was broken by Babe's low-pitched, husky voice. "You're the district attorney?"

"Yes'm. We call it Solicitor down here."

"I've got to talk to you . . . about something important."

She said, tensely, "There are some things you ought to know about Kirk Reynolds." She hesitated, but only for a moment. "He killed Harvey Jackson."

"Yes'm. I know."

"You couldn't know. You could only suspect."

Gabe's watery eyes betrayed interest. "How come you to know it for sure, Miss Henkel?"

"Kirk told me, and I don't mind telling you because nothing—nothing more—can happen to him now."

"That's right, ma'am."

"Kirk went to that dance three weeks ago with Kay Forrest. They went for a ride afterwards. He had trouble on the road with Jackson, and killed him. He didn't think anybody would suspect, so he didn't do anything at first." Babe was speaking carefully. "Then he heard that folks were talking . . . so he made Kay Forrest marry him because in this State a wife can't be made to testify against her husband."

"Yes'm. Kirk was a pretty smart lad."

"Anyway—that's the story. It's true, and you know it's true."

"Mm-hmm! I reckon I do. But Kirk is dead now."

"Yes . . . Her eyes clouded. "And I know who killed him—and why."

Mr. Dixon was uncouth and none too literate, but he was shrewd. He asked softly, "Is that what you come to tell me?"

"Yes."

"Well, ma'am, I'd sho' be glad to hear the truth. Who was it?"

Tiny points of light glinted in her black eyes. She said, "Barney Hamilton!"

"Hmmm . . . You sure?"

"Yes. Now listen, the night Kirk was killed he went to Cathedral Gardens for the purpose of bringing Kay Forrest back to Beverly."

"Barney Hamilton was in love with Kay Forrest. So he waited there for Kirk—met him—and killed him, and I'm here to ask you what you're gonna do about it?"

Gabe Dixon's long, lean fingers closed about the bowl of an ancient pipe. He filled it with tobacco and tapped it down carefully. Then he held a match to it and inhaled deeply. His voice was distant and impersonal. "Got any real evidence, Miss Henkel?"

"Evidence? Ain't that enough evidence?"

Gabe shook his head. "No'm, I'm afraid it ain't. Just the fact that young Hamilton was there don't mean nothing. Other folks were there, too."

She shrugged impatiently. "I know all about them. This Owenby guy and Kay's father and brother. But they didn't have any reason for killing Kirk?"

"No? Now just for the sake of argument, ma'am—let me show you just how much reason they had. Jim Owenby had been Harvey Jackson's best friend, and he knew dawg-gone good and well that Kirk killed Harvey. So that takes care of him. And Andrew and Andy Forrest . . . well, you ain't from Beauregard County, Miss Henkel . . . so maybe you wouldn't understand that the menfolks don't usually stand back and see their women pushed around by men they don't like. So it could easy have been either Mr. Forrest or Andy."

Babe said, "You're stalling."

"Me?"

"Yeh—you! You know as well as I do that Barney Hamilton killed Kirk, and you're using these other three birds as excuses not to do anything."

"But ma'am—beggin' your pardon—that ain't no-ways true. There can't nobody be convicted without evidence, and even if what you been telling me is true—there ain't any proof. So all I'd get for trying Barney Hamilton now would be an acquittal, and then he'd be safe for the rest of his life."

"You mean you're not going to have him indicted?"

"Not now, ma'am. I sho' ain't."

"You're gonna let a murderer go free?"

"Now ma'am . . . that ain't no way to put it. It's just that there ain't a lick of sense prosecutin' somebody when you ain't got the evidence to convict. That's all."

She whirled, and her husky voice had become harsh. She said, "Just because he was a gambler—"

"No'm, that ain't it."

"Aah! Nuts! I'm sick and tired of this lousy hick-town and its politics. I can't give you any votes, that's why you're telling me where to get off. If it was the other way around . . ."

Gabe Dixon was slow to anger, but Sonia Henkel's words had cut deep. He rose and spoke with unaccustomed dignity. "Listen, ma'am . . . I don't blame you for gittin' all excited about this heah mess. No matter what Kirk Reynolds was—you liked him. An' he liked you, too, I reckon. But just because you got an idea that Barney Hamilton killed him ain't no reason for me to fly off half-cocked, an' all your swearin' ain't a-goin' to make me do it, either."

"You mean you're going to let Barney Hamilton go free?"

"Until we git somethin' against him, yes'm, I am."

Babe was trembling. "I might've figured I didn't have a chance. Well, let me tell you something, Mister District Attorney, you're not dealing with any small-time dame now, and if you think I'm gonna take this sitting down, you're mistaken."

"Ma'am, I don't give a darn if you sit down or not. Honest, I don't."

"Gettin' funny, ain't you? Having your little joke? Well grab this, the joke'll be on you before it's over."

"Now, ma'am . . ."

"I'm fed up with men that say 'Ma'am' and 'Miss' and then try to give me another shove in the wrong direction. Why don't you tell me straight out to go roll my hoop? Why don't you admit that the whole town is glad that Kirk was killed, and it'd be bad politics for you to prosecute anybody for killing him? Why don't you start a fund for buying Barney Hamilton a medal? Why don't . . ."

"You know as well as I do that Barney Hamilton killed Kirk."

"Now, Miss Henkel—you're gittin' mad again."

"Mad! Mad! Well, you listen to me—and listen close: I'm not quitting, not by a long shot. I never could do much for Kirk when he was alive, but I can now. And I will!"

"No?" Gabe's voice was edgy. "I wouldn't go foolin' around too much, ma'am."

Kay Forrest sat alone in the living-room of her home. Andy, who was working nights—had gone down to the garage. Mr. Forrest was upstairs poring over Supreme Court decisions. From the hallway came the drone of Mrs. Forrest's voice as she discussed—interminably—the menu for the next Church supper.

Emma Forrest was snapping back to normal. To her husband she had declared frequently—and with considerable vehemence—that the death of Kirk Reynolds was a Godsend to the community; an opinion which was virtually unanimous, and she had been pleased—and more than a trifle surprised—at Kay's subdued manner.

The bell jangled and the front door opened unceremoniously. Barney Hamilton flung his hat on the hall settee near the foot of the steps, nodded brightly to Mrs. Forrest at the telephone, and breezed into the living-room. He bent over Kay's chair and kissed her. He said, "Lad—yoo and I are going places."

UZZIAH: A KING WHO FORGOT GOD

LESSON TEXT—II Chronicles 26:3-5, 16-21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Every one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.—Luke 14:14.

"Pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall" (Prov. 16:18).

A man's life may begin with every promise of greatness and he may prosper in everything for years as he honors God, and then by presumptuous disobedience he may bring it all to sudden destruction, living the closing years of his life in disgrace and going down to his grave in sorrow. That fact is written so large on the pages of history that one marvels that "wayfaring men though fools" need to "err therein" (Isa. 35:8). Pride makes a man blind to his own weakness and so presumptuous that he walks right into trouble. The story of Uzziah points a moral both obvious and needed by all of us.

I. Prosperity (vv. 3-5).

"As long as he sought the Lord, God made him prosper" (v. 5).

With a heart right toward God, the background of a rearing by God-fearing parents (how much that means!) and the counsel of a man who was an "expert" in his understanding of the ways and the will of God, Uzziah prospered greatly. Chapters 25 to 27 of II Chronicles reveal him as a man of affairs, a successful warrior, a capable agriculturist, an able government administrator, and a king whose fame was known far and wide. For one who took over the government of a nation at the tender age of 16, following the tragic death of his father, Uzziah made a remarkable and commendable record.

II. Presumption (v. 16).

"When he was strong, his heart was lifted up to his destruction" (v. 16). What sad words! Prosperity ruined a man who had made a name for himself in times of adversity. In presumptuous pride he attempted to take the place of the priest ordained of God, in effect declaring that the State was over the Church, as we would put it in our day.

"There is no greater danger attaching to the life of Christian service than the danger of presumptuous pride. I mean the pride which manifests itself in an independence of the ordinary means of grace, of prayer, and of the Word of God. I am convinced that that is the cause of much of the failure in many lives here. It is a pride which says: 'I can dispense with the Word of God'; which persists in living on a minimum of prayer and communion with God, and in yet going about the work of God as of old; a pride which, like Uzziah's, seeks carnal prominence in spiritual things. For that was his sin. He sought a carnal prominence in service which God had ordained was to be of an entirely spiritual order" (J. Stuart Holden).

III. Punishment (vv. 17-21).

"The king was a leper . . . and . . . was cut off from the house of the Lord" (v. 21). The priests of God had holy boldness in rebuking the king, a quality which one could hope would never be missing in the testimony of God's servants. The king, however, resented their wise words of counsel, and punishment from God, both swift and terrible, came upon him.

If the judgment upon Uzziah seems too drastic, let us remember that the king was presuming to set aside an order established by God. It was a question of whether God was to rule or the king. We should also bear in mind that what looks like a single outward bit of presumption was really the expression of a heart that had long since gone far from God. When men in high position either in the State or in the Church fall into sin, it is not very often the result of a yielding to a sudden temptation, but rather the inevitable showing forth of what has long been true in the inner life. The leprosy of Uzziah's heart now showed forth in his face, and he had to be shut off from his people and from his royal position.

God Sees the Heart

Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in his sight; but all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do.—Hebrews 4:13.

Spiritual Contradictions

He that was called in the Lord being a servant, is the Lord's free-man; likewise he that is called, being free, is Christ's servant.—I Cor. 7:22.

Patience That Endureth

It is in length of patience, endurance and forbearance that so much of what is good in mankind and womankind is shown.—Arthur Helps.

Power of God

Religion wields the greatest power in the universe, the power of God.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Add Horseradish.—A little horseradish added to salad dressing or white sauce makes a piquant sauce for fish. Horseradish also may be added to whipped cream and served with baked, boiled or fried ham.

Biscuit Pans.—Pans used in baking biscuits should not be too deep. Otherwise the biscuits will not brown evenly on all sides. Select a pan that is about one inch deep.

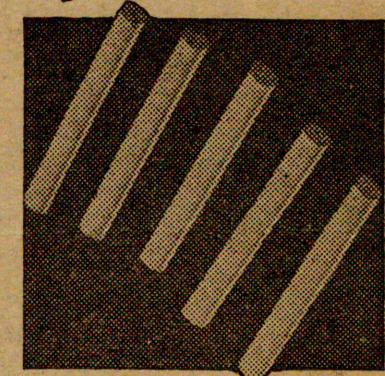

Vegetables.—Keep root vegetables in a rack, not touching each other. Keep lettuce in a muslin bag suspended from the larder ceiling. Use left-over vegetables the same day, as they readily putrefy and become sour.

Colorful Berries.—To make sure berries will retain their bright color or be careful not to overcook them. If they are used in preserves store the jars in a dark place.

Refrigerating Food.—It is not a good plan to put foods in the refrigerator wrapped in paper, except occasionally a layer of waxed paper. Paper is a poor conductor of heat and so prevents refrigeration. Bulky objects such as meat roasts may be covered with a single layer of waxed paper.

5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK

IMPARTIAL laboratory tests of 16 of the largest-selling brands show which one of them gives the most actual smoking per pack. The findings were:

1 CAMELS were found to contain MORE TOBACCO BY WEIGHT than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.

2 CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

3 In the same tests, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER than the average time for all the other brands.

Tinley Park News

A few friends had a basket picnic at Cedar Lake, Ind. last Sunday. They had lots of good eats and chicken. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Forest Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Mancke, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Crist and Joan, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Kay of Orland, Mr. and Mrs. W. Kay, Mr. and Mrs. Lou Ohlrich, Mr. and Mrs. De-fort of Orland, Mrs. Weiner, Helen Rice and Dick Swisher.

H. P. Schmidt, Mrs. C. A. Koepke, brother and sister of Mrs. Clemens, were her guests last Saturday. Monday Mr. and Mrs. J. Keleher and Clemens motored to Benton Harbor, Mich., and were guests of friends.

The RNA held their regular meeting Tuesday. Mrs. Brown and Wolff were initiated after which there was a party. Neighbors Mesenbrink, Hopman, Rice, Stockman, Wannamacher, Steinhagen and Clemens were the hostesses. Ice cream was served to everyone and everyone received a prize after playing bunco.

Mrs. A. Mesenbrink celebrated her birthday Wednesday. There were 25 guests present. She received many beautiful gifts. Bunco was played and after which a delightful lunch was served and all had a very good time.

Tuesday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. August Mesenbrink attended the circus in Joliet and enjoyed it very much. The Misses Loretta Hick and Doris Miller took the bus Sunday night for Minnesota to spend their vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bettenhausen attended a Westinghouse sales meet in Chicago Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Hazel Sodren of 17936 Oak Park avenue is a representative of the Spencer Corset Co., makers of individually designed foundation garments.

The Flying Eagle Patrol, Troop 53 Boy Scouts of Tinley Park recently arranged for a week of camp.

A complete schedule of activities was outlined and a commissary set up.

Packing their equipment into Mrs. Dean's car, Richard Anderson, Patrol Leader, Douglas Olden, quartermaster and Jack Dean, Scribe arrived at the camp in Anderson's Woods and were soon busy choosing the position for tents, council fire, etc.

A cabin made of discarded railroad ties was erected under the supervision of Mr. Oden and Bob Berkick. This served as the mess hall, candle ends being used for illumination.

Arthur Duval, Flaming Arrow Patrol, joined the group at the supper hour.

A council ring was built and a happy group clustered around the camp fire chatting, singing and story telling.

Taps and they were off to bed. The daily plunge in the lake in Mr. Boeyer's woods was welcomed by all the boys and aided materially in swimming advancement.

Charles James, Rev. Mr. Weinreich and his nephew sprang a pleasant surprise in providing a steak fry.

The Stockman family greeted lusty appetites with a complete chicken dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Oden visited the camp. Milk and ice cream was their treat.

Other visitors included Mr. Daniels, Mr. and Mrs. John Homer of Chicago and the Anderson family.

Boys from the Beaver, Flaming Arrow, Silver Fox and Flying Eagle Patrols have pitched tents and camped out during the past week including Jack Freitag, Bobbie Walling, Jack Ryan, Kenneth Jobson, Richard Hoar, Wallace Wyman, Douglas Oden, Jack Dean and Richard Anderson.

Scoutmaster Charles James added general good cheer with a marshmallow roast on Thursday evening.

An invitation is extended to anyone interested in this character-building organization to visit the boys at camp and become better acquainted with this project which stimulates orderliness, dependability and companionship and creates leisure time activity for the boys of Tinley Park.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Mind" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, August 20.
The Golden Text was, "Who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? . . . For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things; to whom be glory for ever" (Romans 11:34, 36).
Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "The Lord by wisdom hath founded the earth; by understanding hath he established the heavens" (Proverbs 3:19).
The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The real jurisdiction of the world is in Mind, controlling every effect and recognizing all causation as vested in divine Mind" (p. 379).

Blue Island to Have "Legion Week" Celebration

Blue Island's Fourth Annual American Legion Week to be celebrated from Monday, August 28th thru Labor Day will bring again to the suburb on Sunday, September 3rd the leading drum and bugle corps of the entire area which will compete in exhibition drills for more than $500 in cash prizes.

The exhibition preliminaries will be held at the stadium on the carnival grounds, 123rd and Western Avenue, beginning at 2:30 p. m. Sunday, Sept. 3rd. While the finals will be in the evening.

"Prize money this year is greater than ever before," points out Arthur Helwig, general chairman of the committee. "The cream of the drum and bugle corps of the Legion and the junior organizations in the state and in northern Indiana are expected to compete. It will be like a state convention."

Although the carnival grounds and Legion Week activities are open free to the general public there will be a small admission charge for the competitive, exhibition drills for the cash prizes, it is announced.

However, the same admission will cover both preliminary and final contests.

"The public will be given a great treat and the exhibition drillings are thrilling sights to hear and see," explained Chairman Helwig. "It will be well worth a small admission charge to be assured a comfortable view of the exhibition which will be the best ever seen here as it will be the pick of the best outfits."

The Blue Island Sensational Band will give a special concert at the carnival grounds the evening of August 29th.

On Monday, Labor Day, itself, the exhibition of firemen First Aid and Fire Fighting will be held.

In the evening a brand new 1939 Chevrolet DeLuxe Master Sedan valued at $691.00 will be awarded. Nightly attendance awards of $25 in cash will be a feature thruout Legion Week.

The competition for Miss American Legion this year has drawn ten lovely young girls of the community. They are: Marjiam Call, 2437 W. High Street; Grace Cione, 2302 W. Union Street; Phyllis Embury, 12841 S. Western Avenue; Willmetta Ernschler, 2533 Collins Street; Dorothy Karschner, 13008 So. Hoyle Avenue; Dolores Kilroy, 2056 W. 139th St., Shirley Marx, 13021 So. Chicago Street; Lorraine Meyer, 2116 W. 120th Street; Theresa Oumet, 2733-123rd Street and Irene St. Aubin, 12734 S. Western Avenue.

The Legion has gone to a greater expense in jewelry awards for the young women than ever before. These awards will be presented Sunday night as a special feature. Top award to Miss Legion is a $200 diamond ring; second is a $100 diamond ring and a $50 wrist watch with watches and other jewelry for the other contestants.

The queen contest winner will be announced late Saturday night after the final votes are counted.

Many new rides are among the concessions which will be ready for visitors on opening night, Monday August 29th, the committee announces.

Concessions have been taken by the leading organizations of the city and thus many groups besides the Legion and the Legion Drum and Bugle Corps will benefit by the Legion Week activities for charitable purposes and civic betterment.

Among organizations already signed up for concessions are: Catholic Daughters of America, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Sons of the American Legion; Legion Auxiliary; Eagles; Knights of Columbus; Blue Island Band Parent Association; B. P. O. Elks 1331; V. F. W. Auxiliary and others.

Besides Mr. Helwig, general chairman, Rudolph Palmer, Legion Commander and Harold L. Richards, Commander-elect, the Legion Week Committee consists of M. J. Dalton, Harvey Atilla, Arthur Steube, J. Floyd Smith, Ralph Sullivan, Jerry Schroeder, Henry Hicks, Guy Fox, Lester Heim, Max May, P. M. Cobb, treasurer.

Legion Week headquarters are at 1311 S. Western Avenue, Blue Island, Ill. The phone is Blue Island 155.

Farm Tenant Loan

The Tenant Purchase committee of Will County attended a two-day school of instruction at Ottawa, Illinois. The committee members are Byron Gaskill, Rinehard Koelling, Christ Kohl, L. W. Brahm, Farm Adviser and M. C. Geuther, R. R. Supervisor.

Under the Bankhead-Jones law it is possible for a tenant to purchase a family sized farm and secure a loan on which he pays 3 percent interest and is given 40 years to pay off the loan.

Any farm tenant or hired man can apply at the Farm Security Administration office, 225 Barber Bldg., Joliet, Illinois. The final deadline for applications is August 31, 1939.

They Picnic in the Ford Garden

WHO says the New York World's Fair is expensive? The average food check on the Fair Grounds, computed after examining a day's business at 70 different restaurants, is 42¢. Fat, juicy frankfurters sell at the standard price of 10¢ and complete meals are served for as little as 40¢.

People who bring their own box lunches, of course, can cut their costs to almost nothing. The Ford Exposition's Garden Court is a Mecca for such as these. Here are comfortable beach tables and chairs, shaded by spreading elms and by spacious blue beach umbrellas. Ample patches of green lawn, splashing fountains, and occasional puffs of breeze help the fairgoer keep cool.

Each afternoon and evening the visitors—the Garden Court comfortably accommodates 800 at a time—may listen to free concerts by Verde Grofe, eminent modern composer whose "Grand Canyon Suite" is known to everyone, and his New World Ensemble. They play popular tunes, music enjoyed by everyone. Here's a typical family group, enjoying themselves while Grofe's orchestra plays in the background.

At the right is Joseph Gilberti, with his daughter Laurie on his lap. From left to right are Diana, Gilberti, Mrs. Gilberti, Mrs. Mary Garizzo, a neighbor, and Mrs. Cloe Frey, Gilberti's sister.

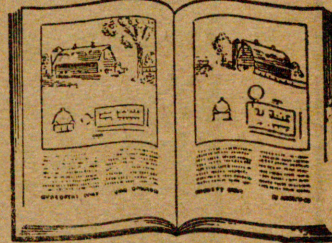

The Gilberti family comes from New Jersey. Their lunch basket, in case you're interested, contained salami, delicious Italian ham, hard-boiled eggs and big red peaches, Gilberti, who has been looking for work since his employer's company folded up last March, said he appreciated the many comforts, and the glorious concerts the Ford Exposition offers without any charge. And Mrs. Garizzo echoed: "I could stay here always."

Visitors to the Fair may use rooms in private homes for as little as $1 a day. Lists of these rooms, compiled by Mayor LaGuardia, are free for the asking. And the Federation of Greater New York Churches has established five centers where children may be "checked" during daytime hours. For $1 a day they are cared for, entertained and led.

Will County Home Bureau Offers Classes

The adult homemaking classes offered by the Extension Service of the University of Illinois, and conducted through the Will County Home Bureau, will open a new series of lessons in the seventeen county units in September.

The lessons will be under the direction of Mrs. Edith Huffman, Home Adviser, and are a series that were planned by the members themselves at a recent meeting.

The fall meetings will be devoted to the study of line, design and color for the individual. In preparation for this, the September meeting will include the taking of a silhouette picture of each member, and from this, individual costume planning will be made.

The following is an outline of the rest of the lessons planned:

September, Major Lesson, Home Adviser, Minor lesson, Parliamentary Procedure.

October and November, Major Lessons, Personal Design Problems, Home Adviser Color Theory, Local Leader. Minor lesson, Home made Gifts to please all members of the family, 2 lessons.

December and January Major Lessons, Color Combinations for the individual, Local Leader, Meal Planning, Home Adviser.

Minor lessons, Table setting and Table service.

February and March, Major lessons The A. B. C. of a Workable Kitchen. Local leader, study of Vitamins in Meal Planning, Home Adviser. Minor lessons, Historical spots in Will County, 2 lessons.

April and May, Major lessons, Vegetable Cookery, Local leader, Study of Minerals in Meal Planning, Home Adviser. Minor lessons, Textile Testing, 2 lessons.

June - July, Major lessons, Easily prepared meals, Local Leader. Salads, Home Adviser, Minor lessons. Textile testing, Electrical.

Special meetings. Sewing Machine Clinic, October. Refinishing Furniture, March.

Open meetings, Health, Common Grounds, March.

Any woman in the county, whether she lives in town or in the country may join the Home Bureau and take the course as offered this year.

Manhattan Farm Wins In Neat Farm Contest

The 240-acre farm of James McGrath near Manhattan, Illinois, was named today as District 13 winner in Chicago's Neatest Dairy Farm Contest, sponsored by Pure Milk Association, Chicago. The McGrath farm scored highest in neatness and cleanliness among the DuPage county farms competing in the Association's sixth annual contest.

The 1939 contest was the fourth time Mr. McGrath has entered the Neat Farm competition and his score represents a steady climb from Junior Award of Merit in 1936 and again in 1937, to second place in 1938, and to the district championship this year. "We tried mighty hard every year," said his daughter who helps to manage the farm, "so naturally I'm pretty happy about it."

The McGraths have been PMA cooperators for ten years. Their prize will be a 56-piece Oneida Community silverware service for eight or its equivalent in silver hollow ware.

Second place in District 13 was won by Herman Gee, whose 200-acre purebred Brown Swiss farm near Orland Park was entered for the first time in the 1939 contest. He has been a PMA producer ever since entering dairying three years ago. Second place award is a 31-piece silverware service for six.

Two Member Farm With Identical Scores Tied for third place in District 13, the 363-acre farm of T. F. Ellison, Mokena, Illinois, and the 160-acre farm of William T. Beagley and Sons near Orland Park, Ill. Both were entered for the first time this year, although the Beagley farm has been a PMA producer for thirteen years. Each family will receive a third prize - the 26 piece silverware service for six.

District 13 farms were judged by Chas. M. Eich, Geo. W. Strong, and J. Harry Howkinson of Lake County, Indiana. Neatness and cleanliness were the primary considerations in judging all farms; financial outlay for decorative purposes was ignored. General appearance of the farm counted 50 percent; condition of the dairy barn and herd 20 percent; condition of the milk house, equipment and utensils 20 percent; and condition and appearance of all other buildings on the farm 10 percent.

All four district winners will receive, in addition to the silverware prizes, Senior award of merit plaques. Another high-scoring farm was that of Chas. G. Mark, Frankfort, Ill., which was ineligible for district prizes again after winning gold medal in the 1937 contest. Other District 13 farms achieving recognition in the 1939 Neatest Farm Contest are:

Senior Award of Merit - awarded farms scoring 90 percent or higher: Chas. G. Mark, Frankfort, Ill., Arnold C. Tesdal, R. 4, Morris, Ill.

Junior Award of Merit - awarded farms scoring 80 to 89 percent, inclusive: Geo. Ott, R. 2, Lockport, Ill., Henry J. Schilling, R. 2, Tinley Park, Ill., F. E. Yunker, R. 2, Orland Park, Ill.

Orland Defeats Matteson, 4 to 1

The Orland Baseball team broke into the "win column" for the first time in the second half of League competition, when they defeated Matteson 4 to 1.

"Buck" Nicolai pitched for Orland and was in very good form as he limited Matteson to 5 scattered hits. Nicolai has been pitching great ball this year but due to the weak hitting of the Orland Club, he has been unable to win ball games.

back to the bench via the strike-out land attack with two hits each. Nicolai sent eleven Matteson boys back to the bench via the strike-out route. Orland had two very fast double plays.

HOME-CANNED FOODS ALWAYS WELCOME
(See Recipes Below)

Sugar and Spice

I've long believed that one reason the art of canning and preserving has been neglected is that many of us have forgotten just how good some of the home canned foods can be. We've forgotten the teasing tang of pickling spices, the mellow aroma of rich fruit butters that used to make the air fragrant at canning time. Maybe we need only to be reminded of all this to restore a lost art to favor!

What pride of accomplishment row upon row of jewel-colored jams, jellies and marmalades can create! And how simple it is to make them in the modern manner! You'll find these tested recipes from my own kitchen as practical as they are delicious. Detailed instructions are included in each recipe; you'll find these general suggestions helpful, too.

For Success in Canning and Preserving.

1. Make only a small amount of the product at one time.
2. Follow the recipe exactly.
3. Be sure that jelly glasses, jars, and covers are sterilized.
4. When they are to be filled with hot food, place the hot glasses or jars on a clean towel wrung out of hot water.
5. Use a small, inexpensive teapot for melting paraffin and pouring it. It eliminates dripping wax all over the glasses and your work table.
6. Store jams, jellies and preserves in a cool, dry place.

Apple Chutney.

- 2 pounds sour apples
 - ½ pound onions (chopped)
 - 1 pound tomatoes (chopped)
 - Juice 1 lemon (strained)
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - ½ teaspoon garlic salt
 - 1½ tablespoons ginger
 - ¼ teaspoon red pepper
 - 2 pounds raisins
 - 2 cups vinegar
 - 1 cup brown sugar
- Pare, core and chop the apples. To them add the remaining ingredients. Simmer gently until tender, then rub through a fine sieve. Seal in sterilized jars.

Peach Conserve.

- 3 pounds of peaches (peeled)
 - 2 oranges (cut in small pieces)
 - 1 pound seedless raisins
 - 3 pounds sugar
 - 1 pound chopped walnuts
- Scald peaches, remove skins, cut into small pieces; discard pits. Place in a saucepan with small pieces of orange pulp and peel, raisins and sugar. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Set over a slow flame and cook until thick, stirring occasionally. Add the chopped walnut meats, pour conserve at once into hot sterilized glass jars or glasses.

Amber Jam.

- (Makes 8 glasses.)
- 3 oranges
 - 2 lemons
 - 4 apples
 - 2 cups crushed pineapple
 - Sugar
- Grate rind of one orange and one lemon. Then peel the remaining 2

oranges and the lemon, being careful to remove all of the white part of the skin. Peel and core the apples. Put all of these fruits through the food chopper and then add the grated orange and lemon rind, and the pineapple.

Measure this fruit and to it add an equal amount of sugar.

Bring slowly to the boiling point and cook, stirring frequently, for ½ hour. Pour into sterilized jelly glasses and top with paraffin.

Note: Amber Jam is delicious when used as a cake filling or as a topping for ice cream.

Lindbergh Relish.

- 2 medium heads cabbage
- 8 large carrots
- 8 green peppers (or 4 red and 4 green)
- 12 medium sized onions
- 1 bunch celery
- 1 cup grated horseradish

Put all through food chopper. Add ½ cup salt and let stand two hours. Drain and mix 3 pints vinegar, 6 cups sugar, 1 tablespoon mustard seed, 1 tablespoon celery seed. Do not cook. Pour into sterilized jars.

Whether your cookie jar is an old-fashioned earthen crock, or a brightly painted tin on the pantry shelf, it needs to be kept filled to satisfy a hungry family. In this column, next week, Eleanor Howe will give you some of her favorite cookie recipes—"Grandmother's Sugar Cookies," and "Butterscotch Brownies" are just two of the delightful recipes you'll find here.

Blackberry Jam.

Wash and drain berries; then pick over and remove the hulls. Take 4 cups of berries and 2 cups of sugar; let come to a boil, and boil 5 minutes. Add 1 more cup sugar and boil 5 minutes longer. Then add 1 more cup sugar and boil approximately 5 minutes more, or until the jelly stage is reached. Then place in sterilized jelly glasses and seal when cold. Makes 4 small or 3 large tumblers.

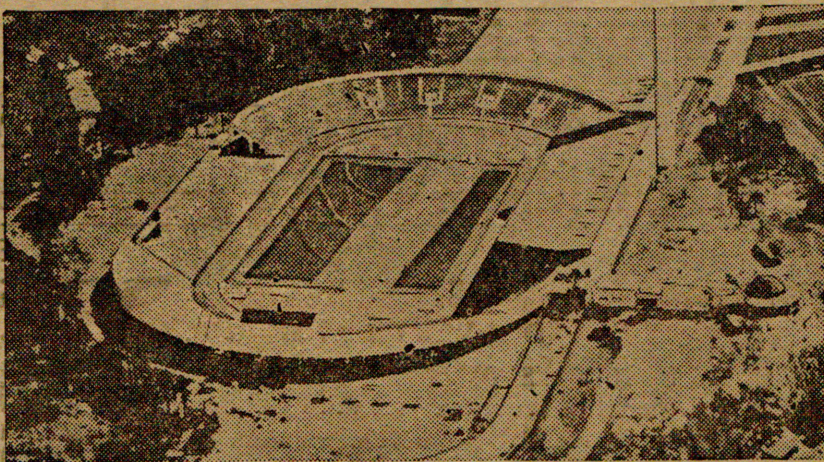

Pickled Peaches.

- 1 peck small peaches
 - 4 tablespoons whole cloves
 - 2 quarts vinegar
 - 6 pounds brown sugar
 - 4 teaspoons mace
 - 1 tablespoon stick cinnamon (broken in small pieces)
- Peel the peaches and stud with whole cloves. Make a syrup of vinegar, sugar, mace and cinnamon. Add the peaches and boil until tender. Pack in hot sterilized jars; cover with syrup and seal.

Easy to Find Answers in This Book.

How to fry fish without spattering of fat, how to cut grapefruit or oranges into skinless sections, a quick method of peeling tomatoes, how to restore over-whipped cream—suggestions for all of these are found in Eleanor Howe's book "Household Hints." Finland's Citizens Spur Efforts To Please 1940 Olympic Visitors

FINNS GO MODERNISTIC. This is an aerial view of the new Olympic stadium erected for the 1940 games at Helsingfors, Finland. It was first built to accommodate 30,000 spectators, but has been enlarged to care for the 60,000 expected next summer.

New Stadium Is Built for International Sporting Event.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

Finland and its capital Helsinki (Helsingfors) are busily making preparations for the 12th Olympic games, opening there in the summer of 1940.

Recent reports indicate that Finns are studying English, the official language of the Olympics, in order to facilitate relations with their visitors. Many Helsinki storekeepers have enrolled in one-year courses in English and German, and special classes are being held for railway employees, street car conductors and the Helsinki police force.

Members of the "Lotta Svard," woman's auxiliary of the Finnish National Guard, are learning to make the favorite foods of the various countries whose nationals will participate in the Olympics.

Stadium Completed.

The Olympic stadium, on the outskirts of Helsinki, was begun in 1934 and completed last year. Several athletic events have already been held there. It was built to accommodate 30,000 spectators, but it has been enlarged, in preparation for the Olympics, to take care of 60,000. The elliptical running track within the stadium, where the world will perhaps see the making of new records, is 400 meters in length; inside the area occupied by the powdered-brick track lies a large, well-kept grass plot on which football and other games will be played.

The games will begin June 20, when the Finnish climate is most favorable for the contests. Nearby lakes keep Helsinki cool in the summer and extended daylight during the summer months adds to its attractiveness as a setting for the Olympics.

Paavo Nurmi Spectacular.

Interest in physical culture dates from the early days of the last century when Finland was made a vassal of Russia. A Finnish gymnastic and athletic association was formed, only to be banned by the Russians as soon as it was well-established. The Finns, however, persisted in developing fine athletes, who were recognized in European sporting circles. In Stockholm, at the Olympic games of 1912, Hannes Kolehmainen "ran Finland onto the map." This brilliant runner and Paavo Nurmi are the most spectacular athletes the country has produced, though Finns have won laurels in a variety of other sports—among them discus-throwing, javelin-throwing, high-jumping and shot-putting.

Egyptians Construct All-Weather Highway Across Biblical Sinai

Across the desolate sand dunes of Sinai, historic peninsula which links the continents of Africa and Asia at the head of the Red Sea, Egyptian authorities are building a new road. This road is planned as a strategic route over which to move troops between Palestine and Egypt, without the usual handicap of weather delays.

Beginning at Ismailia on the Suez canal and reaching across the wide northern stretch of cone-shaped Sinai, the new road is expected to be less susceptible to sudden washouts (the terror of construction in these parts) than is the present route to the south which now runs from Suez to the Palestine border. Not far away is one of the world's most famous paths, the ancient and much-traveled Biblical route between Egypt and Palestine. Along this way came two Josephs of the Bible, one sold into Egypt by his brothers, the other, husband of Mary.

To the south, along the pathway of the Children of Israel, lies Mount Sinai where Moses received the Ten Commandments. Today, although airplanes fly over the peninsula and trains whistle along its northern coast, life as a whole in Sinai seems little changed from the time when the Israelites first saw it.

Germanic People Find New Homes On Foreign Soils

'World-Community' Influences Customs of Other Nations.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

Who and where are the members of the "German world community," frequently referred to in the German press?

If by German, one means German-speaking, of German parentage or near-descent, the world's total population under this classification would be roughly between 90 and 100 million people.

Within the political boundaries of Germany, according to official figures, are some 79,600,000 inhabitants, not counting the citizens of Memel (also largely Germanic) and those of the former Czecho-Slovakian provinces of Moravia-Bohemia (almost entirely non-Germanic).

In other European countries, the Reich claims blood kinship with so-called German minorities of France, Poland, Rumania, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Italy, Latvia, Denmark, Lithuania, Estonia, Belgium, the Crimean Soviet Republic. German-speaking inhabitants of these lands are estimated anywhere from a million and a half in France to about 16,000 in Estonia.

Russian Settlement. Yet the inhabitants of these countries, developing outside Germany, have evolved a culture and tradition of their own, different from that of their racial cousins. Such, for example, is the German group settled along the middle Volga river of Soviet Russia, and comprising more than half the population of the autonomous Volga-German republic. Another, nearer to the Reich, is the independent little principality of Liechtenstein, which is so well satisfied with its ruler and the country's present economic ties with Switzerland, that some 95 per cent of its 2,600 voters went on record this year in a public declaration against any economic union with Germany.

Of foreign stock in the United States, the Germans are by far the predominant element, amounting to more than 17 per cent of the total foreign population. There are over 6½ million people of German stock in the United States, including those born in Germany and those of German parentage on one or both sides.

New York State leads the Union in the number of German-stock inhabitants, with more than a million. Among Germans who have made the United States their permanent home are outstanding figures in all phases of national life. In government there is Dr. Heinrich Bruening, former chancellor of the German republic, now teaching at Harvard university. In the arts, Lottie Lehman, famed Wagnerian soprano, has taken out her final citizenship papers. Marlene Dietrich, German-born movie star, has also become a United States citizen.

In Latin America, where the Swastika competes for front-line trade position against the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack, there are roughly 1,000,000 people of German blood.
